Teaching staff:

The teaching staff had various damages and problems in many levels. It stopped teaching because students couldn't continue in their attendance, with the result that, a scientific distraction was caused, not just with the students, but with the teaching staff too. Other damages were produced by losing scientific courses and subjects because of the coercive move inside Afrin city fearing of the Turkish bombing, the thing which, in turn, led to a material damage.

Damages

Administrative staff:

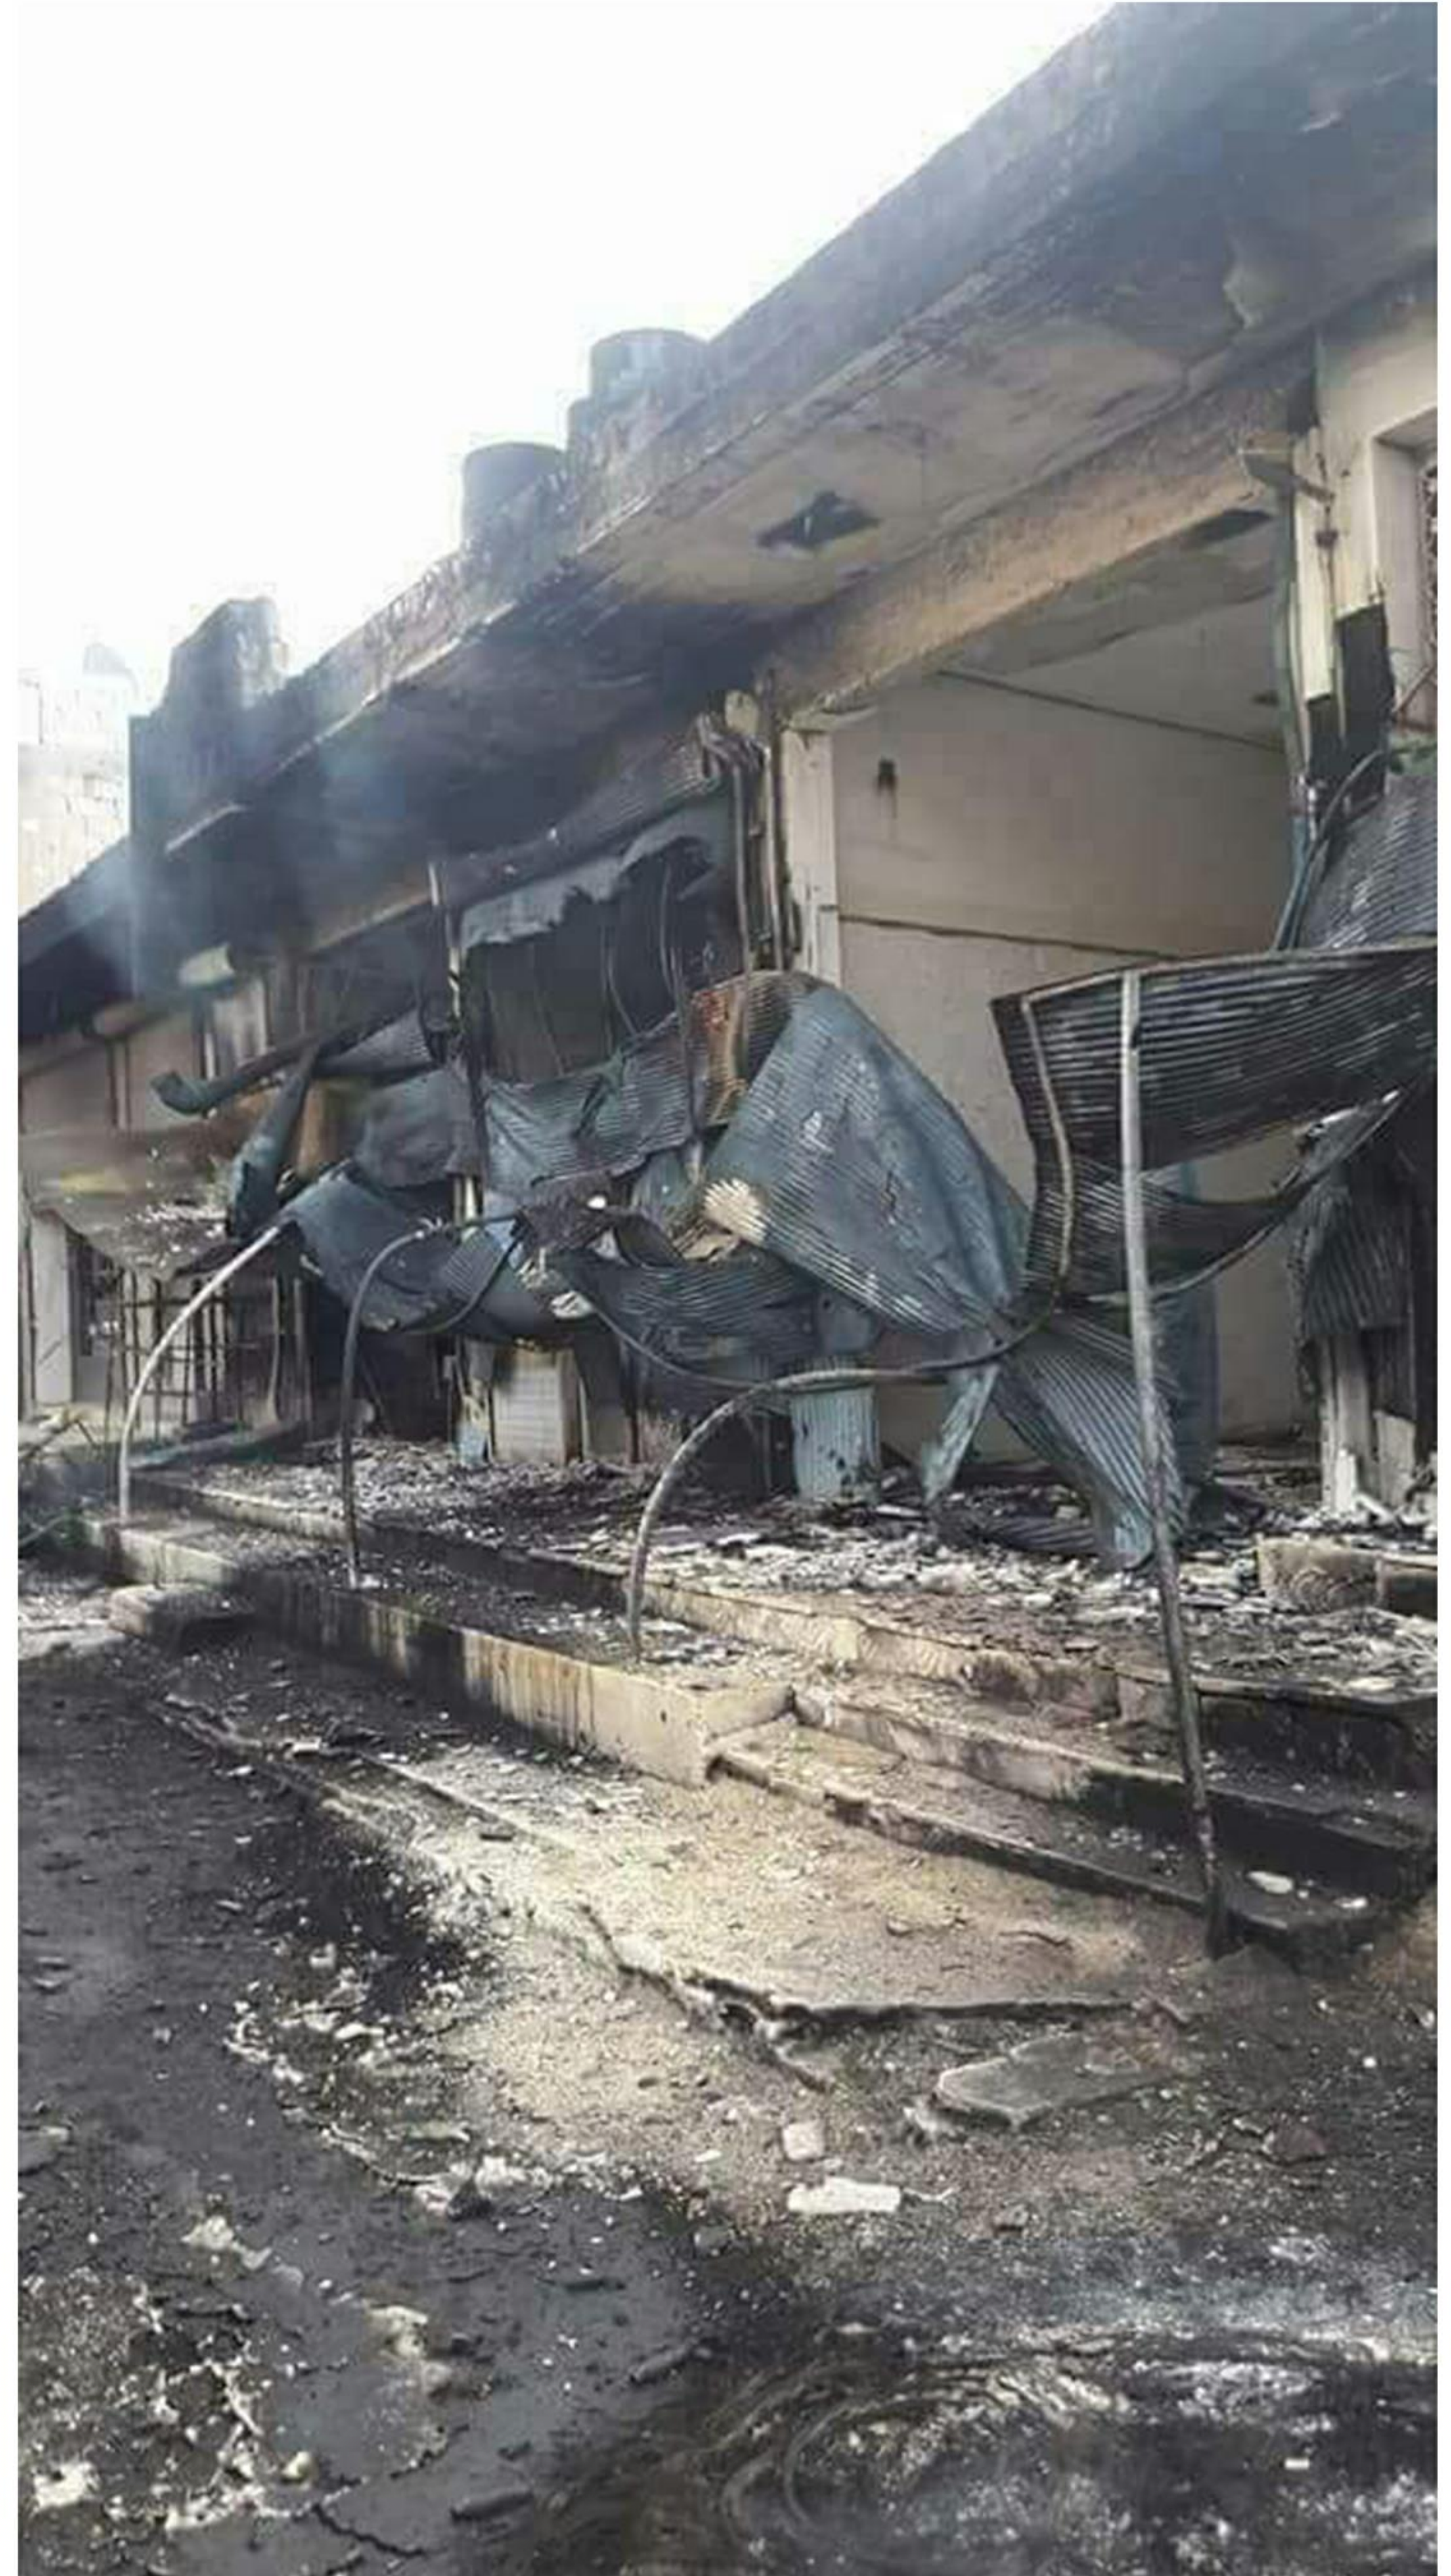

The administrative staff in general, and especially the employees who live in the border villages, suffered from a lot of damages in many levels and they became refugees in Afrin city escaping from the continuous war in Afrin and its villages.

The infrastructure:

As a result of the continuous bombing on Afrin by Turkey and its followers, the building of the university has been changed three times during the military campaign which aims not only fighting sites and border points, but also the civilians and infrastructure as it was obvious during the past days of the campaign, the thing which, in turn, led to damages and losses in scientific, teaching and administrative levels. The university stopped working in all the mentioned fields. This sudden military campaign affected the administrative mechanism at the university in fields like taking needed procedures and precincts for such a kind of crises, like preparing a total thorough archive of the scientific and administrative documents of the university and the registering and students-related papers.
